

Aunt Paige's Basement University is a world-renowned institution consisting of two college kids who are full time at home students. This flexible academic environment allows our two students to flourish and thrive in these unprecedented times.

Through special funding from Bank of Barb and various shopping sprees on Facebook Marketplace, the two students of APBU have transformed a home basement space into the perfect little study nook. The room is equipped with high speed internet, a wireless printer, two desks, and a fridge for plenty of snacks. Students can also experience dorm life while on campus as there is a full kitchen above the study space and beds in each of the three bedrooms. While the students are not downstairs doing homework, the living room TV has the hottest streaming services such as Netflix, Hulu, and Disney +. If the students are lucky, they may even be babysitting for the local families on their school days.
